

Homily for Parish Pastoral Visit
Saint Anthony Parish
Quincy, Illinois
Sixth Sunday of Easter

May 21-22, 2022

† Most Reverend Thomas John Paprocki
Bishop of Springfield in Illinois

My dear brothers and sisters in Christ,

It is good to be with you for this pastoral visit to Saint Anthony Parish in Quincy. Today the Church celebrates the Sixth Sunday of Easter.

By way of introduction to the theme of today's Gospel, I note that a currently very popular genre of television involves people remodeling their homes. Doing home renovations has certainly become common during the time of COVID-19. These shows are not about totally demolishing what was originally built. Instead, they demonstrate how to fix what has broken, renewing what has become stale and dated, thus giving new life to something that has deteriorated.

Of course, God does not simply remodel or restore creation as though it were some cosmic house-flipping show. Instead, God restores creation—including us—to the original dignity we had before the fall. This restoration does not involve lumber, nails, or paint but instead increases God's peace and love in our lives so that we can live his commandments in our faith community.

Today's Gospel (John 14:23-29) comes from the 14th chapter of John. Much of that chapter contains discourses and exchanges between Jesus and His disciples during the Last Supper. Jesus is attempting to explain to His disciples the relationship between Him and His Father. The disciples, however, are not able to grasp the full meaning of what Jesus is saying.

In today's Gospel, Jesus says, "Whoever loves me will keep my word, and my Father will love him, and we will come to him and make our dwelling with him." Too often, people try to reduce Jesus to someone who simply loves us and provides whatever we think will make us happy. In reality, however, Our Lord's love is not afraid to make demands upon us. Our love of Jesus, being empowered by the Holy Spirit, and growing in our faith community, will allow us to offer an authentic witness to Christian living. Our tired and jaded world needs our authentic witness as Christians. We cannot underestimate how much the love we show within our faith community will help us evangelize people. After promising that the Father will send the Holy Spirit, today's Gospel closes with Jesus offering His peace. This peace derives from the heart of Jesus' life. Loving Jesus leads to our own inner peace. Jesus' peace is the all-embracing sphere of his life, love, and joy.

I am here with you this weekend for a parish pastoral visit, as I make my way around the diocese visiting each of our 129 parishes. After each of the weekend Masses, I look forward to greeting as many of you as possible. Then, on Sunday afternoon, I will meet with your Parish Finance and Pastoral Councils, School Board, and other Parish Leaders to hear about all the good things that are happening here at Saint Anthony Parish to implement our Fourth Diocesan Synod.

My visit today is also an opportunity to share with you my hopes and my vision as your bishop for the future of our diocese, building on and implementing our Diocesan Synod held in 2017 on the theme of discipleship and stewardship.

Following our Diocesan Synod, I published my third pastoral letter, Ars vivendi et moriendi in Dei gratia, Latin for, "The Art of Living and Dying in God's Grace." The full text is posted on our diocesan website. In this letter, I share some personal reflections in part one on the questions posed in the preparatory phase of the Fourth Diocesan Synod that we conducted in November 2017. In part two, I provide a summary of the Fourth Diocesan Synod and some pastoral commentary on the twelve declarations that were adopted. In part three, I offer some theological reflections on the art of living and dying in God's grace.

I see this post-synodal pastoral letter as the third work in a trilogy of pastoral letters, with each pastoral letter building on the preceding one. In my previous pastoral letter, called, Ars crescendi in Dei Gratia, Latin for, "The Art of Growing in God's Grace," I wrote, "The art of growing in God's grace is the key to growth in the Church. Building a culture of growth in the Church starts with inviting people to experience the love of Jesus Christ." I also proposed some constructive steps to build a culture of growth in the Church. These steps for growth were designed to build on the foundation that I laid in my first pastoral letter, Ars celebrandi et adorandi, "The Art of Celebrating the Liturgy Properly and Adoring the Lord in the Eucharist Devoutly."

This progression of themes is in keeping with the maxim that addresses the centrality of worship in the life, identity, and mission of the Catholic Church: how we worship reflects what we believe and determines how we will live.

In my most recent pastoral letter, I said that the "art of living and dying in God's grace is the key to everlasting happiness in eternal life. The Christian faithful die to sin through the saving waters of baptism. By dying to their selfish desires through acts of mortification and self-sacrifice, the Christian faithful grow in love of God and neighbor. The whole Christian life aims at reaching this goal of everlasting happiness in eternal life by turning from sin and growing in virtue through God's grace.

As an expression of how to reach this goal of everlasting happiness, we adopted a new mission statement at our Fourth Diocesan Synod for all of us as members of this Diocese. It says, "The mission of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Springfield in Illinois is to build a fervent community of intentional and dedicated missionary disciples of the Risen Lord and steadfast stewards of God's creation who seek to become saints. Accordingly, the community of Catholic faithful in this diocese is committed to the discipleship and stewardship way of life as commanded by Christ Our Savior and as revealed by Sacred Scripture and Tradition."

To further this mission, the Diocese of Springfield in Illinois is committed to implementing the Four Pillars of Discipleship and Stewardship, namely, hospitality, prayer, formation, and service. In other words, we will invite people proactively to join us in prayer, especially Sunday Mass; we will provide well-prepared celebrations of the sacraments and other occasions for prayer as signs of hope and paths of grace to heaven; we will study the Bible and learn more about Jesus and our Catholic faith; and we will serve each other, especially those in need, by practicing charity and justice.

Through prayer, discernment, and consultation with others, it has become evident that the Lord is inviting us to embrace more fully our call to discipleship out of which necessarily follows a life of stewardship.¹

I concluded my third pastoral letter by telling a personal anecdote, which I would like to share with you now to close this homily.

Once when I was catching a flight to celebrate an out-of-town wedding for a friend of mine, I had gift-wrapped a figurine of the Blessed Mother as a wedding present for the newlyweds and put the gift in my carry-on bag. When I got to the airport and put my bag on the conveyer belt for security screening, the TSA agent looked at the x-ray of my bag and called out, "Bag check." I immediately realized the problem: the figurine was made of leaded crystal and the security agent must have thought it was some sort of weapon. The TSA supervisor came over, saw me standing there wearing my clerical suit and Roman collar, then looked at the x-ray image of the figurine and exclaimed, "For heaven's sake, it's the Blessed Mother, let him through!" Of course, I was greatly relieved, and while the incident still makes me laugh, I have often thought that this little vignette is exactly the scenario I hope for when I die: I pray that I will arrive at the gates of heaven with the Blessed Mother at my side. Seeing me standing there with Our Lady beside me, Saint Peter will exclaim, "For heaven's sake, he's with the Blessed Mother, let him through!"

Staying close to our Blessed Mother throughout life provides faithful assurance that she will lead us to her Son Jesus at the hour of our death, so that we may die in God's grace and enjoy everlasting happiness in eternal life.

May God give us this grace. Amen.
